Percutaneous osteosynthesis of femoral shaft fractures is associated with good functional results and a lower risk of complications compared to conventional internal fixation, and is recommended as the treatment of choice. In contrast, the use of percutaneous osteosynthesis in the management of acetabular fractures is controversial, and has been limited to intramedullary nailing and the use of a buttress plate. This report presents the results of percutaneous fixation of the acetabulum with the Bevin plate (Orthofix) and pin techniques. The results are excellent with good range of motion and minimal pain. There were no major complications, such as stress fractures or avascular necrosis of the femoral head.

The technique is simple and has an excellent rate of healing, with a low incidence of complications. We believe that percutaneous fixation of acetabular fractures should be considered as an alternative to conventional internal fixation. When you apply a filter or effect to a picture, that effect is always applied in the background. The background remains the same, but when you apply the effect to another picture, you end up with the two images layered on top of each other. When you paint on a layer in Photoshop, you are painting directly on the actual file ( **_digital photo file_** ). When you make changes, you are effectively erasing the layer and creating a new layer in its place. When you paint on a # layer, you are always working on a copy of the original. The Lasso tool is very useful for creating boundaries around shapes or objects in an image, and then shapes or objects in an image, and then either beveling or selecting an area for cropping. In the ** Layers panel **, you can create a boundary around an image, bevel the edges, or select an area of the image for cropping. The New Layer button ( **Control** \> **New Layer** ) pops up a dialog box that allows you to create a new layer. In the ** Layers panel **, a new layer appears above the layer that contains the last operation you performed on it. The Reverse action ( **Filter** \> **Reverse** ) reverses the effect of an entire layer, making it black and white. Many effects make use of this filter, like the Black & White adjustment in the ** Adjustments panel **. To choose a new layer color, use the Layer Color dialog box ( **Object** \> **Layer** \> **Layer Color** ). This is a separate dialog #### box from the Hue-Saturation dialog box ( **Hue** \> **Colorize** ). In a box ( **Image** \> **Adjustments** \> **Levels** \> **Split Toning** ), you can split a color into its separated colors. * **Composite:** A composite combines two or more layers. All of the layers that make up the composite are merged together, and if you change one of the layers, all of the merged layers change. In other words, you can fix the composite, but if you modify one of the parts, it changes the entire composite. * **Gradient Map:** A gradient map is a color gradient applied to an image. In the **Colors** tab ( **Hue** \> **Saturation** \> **
